

Agile Transformation

Achieve breakthrough success for your technology initiatives.

Your organization must constantly change to stay competitive. But how can you get there if your practices are stuck in the past? Embracing agility across your organization can transform how you set goals, respond to change and work collaboratively to deliver great products that drive business results.

Why do it?

When “business as usual” is no longer good enough.

Change is hard, but losing market share or disappointing your customers is harder. There are many ways to tell that “business as usual” is no longer working and it’s time for transformational change:

You’re not keeping pace with market shifts that demand faster and better results to achieve your goals.

You’ve been plagued by the same organizational, process, or technology issues for years.

Your efforts to change people, processes, and systems have failed.

How will this help?

Transform how you set goals, collaborate and execute, and you will transform your bottom line.

Truly Agile organizations can adapt quickly to change and respond faster to market and customer demands. Getting there requires more than simply adopting Agile or purchasing a new tool, it requires a diligent approach and the right mindset across an entire organization. The results speak for themselves. Organizations that embrace Agile Transformation see benefits like:

- Increased employee morale/retention
- Happier customers
- Faster time to market
- Increased throughput
- Fewer production incidents
- Less wasted effort

Our Approach

Transformation starts at the top.

Agile Transformation begins and ends with strong leadership and a commitment to change across the organization. You get there by challenging how you envision goals and outcomes, and how your team collaborates on solutions through processes like:

Finding and eliminating technology, process and organizational roadblocks.

Instilling Agile principles and practices for traditionally non-Agile parts of the organization.

Identifying and empowering Agile champions and sponsors.

Understanding the importance of organizational and operational changes, and developing a roadmap to implement them.

We Can Help

Whether you are focusing on getting better or just getting started, our experts can be your guide.

The first step is identifying a partner who can help you achieve your goals. At Excella, we know that transformation isn't about telling a few people in the organization to follow a different process. Real transformation requires extensive experience and expertise. We have both. Our coaches, trainers, ScrumMasters, change management experts, and software developers have decades of experience implementing Agile solutions for Fortune 100 companies and federal agencies, including:

- U.S. Census Bureau
- Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB)
- Department of Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General (HHS OIG)
- Department of Homeland Security (DHS) U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS)
- Marriott International
- Promontory Interfinancial Network

excella.com |  @excellaco

Excella is an Agile technology firm helping leading organizations realize their future through the power of technology. We work collaboratively to solve our clients' biggest challenges and evolve their thinking to help them prepare for tomorrow. Together we transform bold ideas into elegant technology solutions to create real progress. Learn more at www.excella.com.